

CFL Launches Groundbreaking Documentary Series Amplifying Men's Voices in Fiji – Forget Me Not

Suva, Fiji – 14 April 2026

Suva, Fiji – Communications Fiji Limited (CFL) will premiere a powerful new documentary series, Forget Me Not, featuring six Fijian men sharing personal stories of identity, trauma, mental health, addiction and resilience.

This groundbreaking documentary series will be screened in Suva on 14 April 2026 and marks a first for CFL, tackling often-unspoken issues surrounding masculinity and societal expectations.

Through honest storytelling, the documentary series highlights the real-life challenges men face and the impact of silence and stigma. Contributors include Ben Morrison, who reflects on struggles with identity and the pressure to fit in, and now advocates for authenticity and self-care. Another participant, Reverend Simone Tugi, shares the emotional burden of supporting a child through addiction, revealing years of silent struggle due to stigma and his decision to speak out.

Produced over three months, the project was supported by the Pacific Media Assistance Scheme, an Australian Aid initiative. It also involved international collaboration with three-time Emmy Award-winning Producer Jackie Turnure, working alongside CFL's Digital Video Content Producer, Immanuel Raju.

The documentary series aims to spark national conversation, reduce stigma, and encourage men to seek support and share their stories. It explores themes of masculinity, fatherhood, healing, and self-discovery.

A public launch is scheduled for 14 April in Suva. The documentary series will also be available across CFL's broadcast and digital platforms.
